WFWP Outing to Cheung Chau Island

WFWP members and friends went on an outing to Cheung Chau Island on Saturday, 31 May. The outing was both educational and fun.

The WFWP group was greeted at the ferry pier by Lee Kwai Chun, a representative from the Cheung Chau Women's Association. Ms Lee brought us to a food waste education program that was founded by the association, where we heard a brief introduction to their program. The program collects waste from local families and, with the help of a special processing machine, turns it into compost. The compost is then used to grow organic fruits and vegetables – including corn, cucumber, peppers and papayas – in a small garden. Families are invited to volunteer and participate in the planting.

After the program, another representative from the women's association walked with us and introduced us to the history and landmarks of Cheung Chau Island, including the historic Pak Tai temple, one of the oldest in Hong Kong.

The group had lunch together in a local restaurant, and spent some time visiting the temple and walking through the shopping area with many interesting boutique shops, before taking the ferry back to Hong Kong island.

Financial report and funding

The mid-term financial report has been completed for the Green Fashion Competition.

Also, WFWP is planning to apply for Environmental Education & Community Action (EE&CA) funding for 2015, and is currently preparing the funding application.
